

product positioning statement

Kivi is the voice-to-text, keyboard-killer application by Sarvam, primarily made for Indian users who think way faster than they type. This is an indigenous, multilingual product that gives access to 22+ languages along with seamless and natural code-switching.

Unlike other conventional STT products, Kivi understands every aspect of an Indian tone along with the slang, and adapts to our languages in its own way rather than forcing us to change the way we speak. This makes every computer feel like another close friend or colleague who gets every joke of ours exactly the way we intend it to.
